Jersey Boys at the Ohio Theatre

Saturday, August 27, 2011

Join us for lunch and orchestra seats for the matinee performance of Broadway's runaway smash hit, Jersey Boys at Columbus' Ohio Theatre. This morning we depart for our capital city. Upon arrival, we'll enjoy a family-style Italian lunch at Buca di Beppo located in the city's Arena District. After lunch we depart for the theatre.

The Ohio Theatre

Named the "Official Theatre for the State of Ohio," this 2,779-seat Spanish-Baroque masterpiece was envisioned to be "a palace for the average man" by its Scottish-born architect, Thomas W. Lamb. During its illustrious history it's been a Loew's movie house, a vaudeville stage and currently the home of The Columbus Symphony Orchestra, BalletMet and the Broadway Across America theatre productions. Once destined for the wrecking ball, but thankfully saved by a group of concerned citizens, the theatre has been lovingly restored to its original splendor.
